

"Keyes" to "Moore" Knowledge

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS

RABBI MOSHE BEN-CHAIM

Ambassador Keyes

Judge Roy Moore

Pun intended. Alan Keyes and Roy Moore are standing up for precisely what their names indicate, and why the Ten Commandments were only ten: God intended man to search for worlds of truths, only hinted to in the raw Ten Commands. They are truly our 'keys to more knowledge'. The lessons of these commands don't end with their text. If God wished man to simply read and repeat, "memory" suffices for such activity. But God gave each man intelligence and free will - the tools for searching God's laws, eventuating in our wider application to all areas of life. It was this independent thought and loyalty to God's Biblical principles which guided our Founding Fathers. It is again these principles which guide Roy Moore and Alan Keyes. They wish to follow God's divine directive, not man's corrupt violation, and distortion of our Constitution.

"One nation under God" is the United States' core belief. No one argues this. Is it a crime then, to validate our God? "In God we Trust". Uncontested. God, Who gave morality to man at Sinai, defined what is liberty and what is justice for all.

God's wisdom is deep. 'What' He wrote is equally important to 'why' He omitted. Why did the tablets have only ten of the 613 commandments we see elsewhere (Deut. 27:3) that the entire Bible was written three times on three sets of 12 stones. So why didn't the tablets given to Moses at Sinai contain all the commands too? The system of God's knowledge is one of 'derivation' - all knowledge cannot be contained in writing. God gave us intelligence for the sole purpose of using it. The tablets of only ten commands, created a permanent lesson: "All is not here, you must study continually to arrive at new ideas in My infinite sea of knowledge". Therefore, only the head categories of truths are engraved on these two stones. Knowledge is arrived at only through thinking. Since we require a starting point, God inscribed the head categories which would lead the thinker to all other truths, which may be derived from these ten.

God's Ten Commandments don't only teach truths. These truths are also in the Bible. The Ten Commandments were given separate from the Bible for an important lesson: Man must use his intelligence to determine what is truth, and what is false. Judge Moore and Ambassador Keyes employ this God-instructed method to uncover the tragic denial of God - our system of justice cannot exist without Him. Roy Moore and Alan Keyes understand God's directive. They look at our Constitution as men created by God, guided by God's words. To remove God from the equation, is to attack American justice. To support God's words on these commands, is an endorsement of our Constitution.

A further corruption, is that Moore's opponents attempt not to repress religious expression, but to deny historical truth. History, not religion, attests to the event at Mount Sinai where God gave His Ten Commandments, just as history attests to any event. Sinai and the Ten Commandments are not blind, religious acceptance, but proven historical fact. Such a miraculous event would not have survived the millennia, had it never occurred. The masses at this event testify to its veracity - mass conspiracy is impossible. Motive to lie on such a grand scale cannot happen.

Divorcing God from our system of Justice is a two-fold crime: an outright denial of history, and a corruption of our American justice system. This is not a religious issue. The courts have no say in this matter.

It is a crime that more monuments to God's keys to knowledge and morality do not exist. □
